

2020 brought challenges unlike any we could have predicted.
We got lemons, and we did our best to make lemonade.

In 2020, the LSP Association:

- Appreciated that Governor Baker included LSPs as "essential service providers" (see p. 6) during the pandemic.
- Transitioned all LSPA courses and membership meetings to a virtual platform and continued to provide DEP and technical credits to LSPs.
- Received annual sponsorship and partner support from over 20 very generous companies.
- Participated in and shared timely information, via email blasts, from MassDEP.
- Contributed to regulatory and policy discussions on climate change, asbestos in soil, PFAS in drinking water, and Brownfields Tax Credits.
- Helped publicize the serious issues from home heating oil spills; these TV news features resulted in an uptick in households requesting appropriate insurance coverage.
- Added more on-demand courses to our growing library.
- Upgraded our association management software and website platform to better serve our members.
- Presented our first Environmental Justice award to Ethan Mascoop, former Health Director, Framingham.
- Continued to grow our Blog, LinkedIn and Facebook pages.
- And so much more!
