Presenter Bio

Katherine Woodward, PE, PhD, US EPA Region 1

Kate grew up in Connecticut and traveled south to Georgia Tech, where she received a BCE in 1979. Following graduation, she became an Officer in the US Army Corps of Engineers. She was stationed in the DC area numerous times and had assignments in Hawaii where she received a Master's in CE from the University of Hawaii, Manoa, and Charleston, SC. She retired from the military after serving as the Deputy District Engineer for the Charleston District. She spent time after retirement in a laboratory and as a High School teacher, teaching both math and engineering. In 2008, it was time to move back to New England. She has been a Project Manager at US EPA since 2010 and received a PhD in Environmental Health from the Department of Engineering at Tufts University in 2020. She has a PE from Virginia.
